The Black Point duel matter seems to be considerably mixed. A statement appeared yesterday that the man named Richards who had been arrested, was also known as Dr. Zecchi, and that he was by occupation a tailor, and had manufactured the story of the duel simply to give him notoriety. On being interviewed, Richards states that he is a graduate of the University of Georgia, studied chemistry and medicine there; is not a tailor and does not understand the business. He says the duel did take place, and he related the facts at the request of Dr. Zecchi, so that [illegible] in the papers; he prefers to go to jail rather than tell where Zecchi is; that he never represented himself as Dr. Zecchi, but was in business with him last year, and both names appeared on their door, and they were therefore sometimes confounded. The steamer Fannie Patton left Salem yesterday morning for Corvallis.

Some of the Salemites are nearly washed out by high water in the mill-race.

Fourteen members were taken into the Good Templars' lodge at Jefferson last Saturday evening.

Oregon farmers as a rule, we believe, prefer the broadcast sower and cultivator for wheat to the drill.

A grist mill is very much needed at Buena Vista. It is one of the best points for one I know of in the State, and any one who wants to go into that business I would advise to come and look at the place before locating elsewhere.

We learn the McMinnville collegiate school is enjoying a high degree of prosperity. The energy of President Bailey and his corps of teachers, is bringing forth results in the way of zeal and proficiency in the students. Both in the num[ber] and character of its students, the school is as prosperous as it ever has been before.

A. Hackleman, Esq., has just made the trip across the Cascade mountains from the Ochoco country. Learning of the dangerous illness of his son Thurston, at Albany, and the river being frozen up, Mr. Hackleman determined to try the journey across the mountains. His friends were surprised and pleased when he put in an appearance among them, and he was equally pleased to find his son convalescent.

The farmers of Polk county are reported to be pretty well provided with feed for their stock. There was about the same amount of grain sown last fall as is usually sown in this locality. It looked well before the freeze. A great deal of plowing has been done this winter, and farmers will finish putting in their crops a little earlier in the spring than usual, as a [illegible] expect to use cultivators and not [illegible] plow their ground.

A gentleman writing from Polk county to the Record, under date of the 18th, says: "We are just at present experiencing the coldest weather, I think, I have ever seen in Oregon. The thermometer has been as low as six degrees below zero. The river at this place is frozen completely over, and several parties have crossed on the ice, which is something I have never seen before, having lived here since 1847. There is about four or five inches of snow on the ground."

A Polk county correspondent writing to the Farmer says: "The call of the directors to disband the Home Manufacturing Company on the 2d of February, will get my aye either in person or proxy. Reason: I have have known corporate companies to get to pulling and get up jealousies and accomplish nothing. An instance; McMinnville Ditch Company, Disband, and Marion county can and will start a factory with $60,000 stock: Linn county will do the same, instead of the two counties contending for the location with only $30,000.

H. M. S. Myrmidon, with Capt. Spalding, has gone north to examine into the Indian outrages. Three white men in a canoe, when near Cape Mudge, were followed by armed Indians, who subsequently retreated when the whites showed fight.

The schooner Kate, Capt. D. Laing, arrived at Victoria on the 15th, to the great delight of everybody. She lay for two or three days under the lee of James Island to escape the heavy weather. She had two anchors out, and the waves washed right over her, freezing as they struck. Her cargo of coal was frozen together and will have to be dug out with pickaxes. The decks are covered with ice an inch thick.

DISTINGUISHED DEAD.

THE DEATH ROLL OF 1874.

The number of distinguished persons who have died during the year closing, the Cincinnati Gazette remarks, is not as large as that of some former years. It includes, however, many men of high reputation in the political, business, and literary worlds, and other celebrities, of whom we note the following:

Newcomb, President of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad; Col. S. S. Fisher; the Rev. E. F. L. Taylor, secretary of the Baptist Home Missionary Society; Bishop H. J. There are now eight vessels on the way from England to Victoria.

A boom containing, it is said, about 250,000 ft., belonging to Commodore Rodgers, broke away from its moorings at the North Arm and floated up till it arrived opposite New Westminster, on Friday week. Capt. Odin and William of Holland, like good fellows, tried to secure it with a line, but the ice quickly severed the connection, and on Sunday morning the boom gave way and floated in fragments up toward the camp, where a good many logs have become imbedded in the ice.

The Colonist of January 19th says: The winter of 1875 will be a memorable one in the annals of the North Pacific coast. The cold has not been so intense, in this latitude at least, within the recollection of the oldest resident. Yesterday parties were skating on the Arm at Craigflower and at Rock Bay. James Bay was frozen over to DeWeiderhold's wharf. Elk Lake presents a bosom as smooth and clear as plate glass. At Nanaimo the mercury has been 4° below zero.

THE TERRITORIES.

One day last week a man below Utsalady had both feet frozen so badly that they will probably be amputated.

One day this week the dwelling of Chas. Thompson, a carpenter living in Upper Steilacoom, was burned down; the owner only saving his blankets and a chest of tools. Cause of fire unknown. Loss, $500.

The lower Sound saw mills have been all shut down for want of water. At Utsalady twenty men were employed carrying water to the Favorite, to enable that boat to make her way up to Seattle for inspection.

The Seattle Dispatch announces that Edward Brown, who has been connected with Mr. Beriah Brown in publishing that paper, "withdraws to engage in more congenial and, as he thinks, more remunerative pursuits."

It is reported that Geo. N. McConaha, Esq., of Seattle, had an arm broken during the recent cold snap, by slipping off the steps of the Occidental hotel, at Seattle. We shall be sorry to hear the report confirmed.

Mr. C. P. F[illegible], of Tacoma, has been writing to the Nautical Gazette, of New York city, some vigorous puffs of Tacoma and the surrounding country. The roseate hue with which he touches up the subject is absolutely enchanting.

The ship Dashing Wave left Tacoma for San Francisco on the 15th inst. with a cargo of 650,000 feet of lumber. Mrs. Rhodes and Mr. James Forrest were passengers. She carried 31 barrels of salmon from Hood's canal fishery.

Though the official returns have not been yet ascertained, it is pretty well understood that Mr. Hannah has been elected as joint representative for the counties of San Juan and Clallam, W. T., at the special election in those counties on the 24th ult.

F[illegible], the little son of Gov. F[illegible], fell from the platform of the stairs at the rear of the bank in Olympia on Wednesday of last week, a distance of 12 feet to the ground, and struck upon his head in the snow, escaping entirely unhurt, which may be considered almost a miracle.

The Intelligencer of last Saturday says: The Swinomish slough is frozen up so that the steamer Libby is obliged to reach Whatcom by way of Deception Pass. At LaConner, and for three or four miles this side, the channel is frozen solid. This is the case also at Squaw and Fidalgo bays.

The stockholders of the Seattle and Walla Walla Railroad met on Monday, 11th inst., and elected the following directors for the ensuing year: W. N. Bell, B. Gatzert, L. B. Andrews, H. L. Yesler, Wm. Renton; A. A. Denny, F. Matthias, J. McNaught, John Collins, T. I. McKenny, J. M. Coleman and T. B. Morris.

The Port Gamble mill was shut down for a week, in consequence of the freezing of its water works, and all hands are out of employment. The slab-wood which had kept up continued fires on the saw-dust for years, was well nigh exhausted, and in some instances the lack of drinking water was supplied from Condon's bar.

The Tacoma Tribune of the 22d, says: Every newspaper, and every subscriber to a newspaper, and every expectant recipient of a letter, on this North Pacific coast, is vexed beyond all patience at the recent irregularities of our mail service, and the maledictions heaped upon the agents and carriers have been many and loud and strong.

Land slides are looked for, since the thaw, from the perpendicular banks along the Sound, portions of the crust surface of which will undoubtedly slip off into deep water. A diminutive slide occurred on Thursday afternoon, from the high bank alongside the Tacoma sawmill, which covered up the donkey engine inside, but did no harm.

The Port Townsend Argus says: The weather during the past week has been the most severe experienced since the well remembered cold winter of 1862, when ice five inches thick formed at Neah Bay over a running brook, which has never been frozen over since. On Wednesday morning the temperature was but a few degrees above zero, and the coldest weather of which any record has been kept at this place for the past ten years shows that the lowest range of the thermometer was 14° above zero.

The Argus says that the Hall Brothers, who have been engaged in this branch of industry at Port Ludlow during the past year, and are even now completing their seventh vessel are reported to have recently contracted to enter upon the construction of four more at that port. This certainly reflects vast credit upon their skill, while it augments the prestige that is rapidly obtaining for Port Ludlow in ship building. It also adds that it is rumored that parties from England contemplate building a ship at Utsalady during the coming season.

The Olympia Echo is informed that Wm. Wright, of Big Skookum Bay, lately undertook to melt the bottom off a kerosene oil can. The top of the can was left air-tight, and a high pressure was generated in the can. While William was looking eagerly to see the bottom drop off the can, an explosion took place, and the wonderstruck fisherman lit out in the bay. His arm was badly burned. His wife dressed the wound, and remarked that "William was just learning how to catch fish, but he didn't know much about taking the bottom out of oil cans."

Mr. Charles Stevens, town marshal of Port Townsend, was shot and so badly wounded Wednesday, January 13th, that he died two hours afterward. Some drunken Indians were creating a disturbance, and the marshal took one of them off to jail and locked him up. He then went back after another, who resisted him, and a scuffle ensued, and another young Indian then shot him from behind, the load of shot taking effect in the thigh, severing the artery. Before medical assistance could be secured the wounded man had lost so much blood that death was inevitable. The Indians are all in custody.

A WOMAN SPEECHLESS FOR FORTY-TWO YEARS.—Katharine McCall, of Caledonia, sister of John G. and Laura McCall, at the age of 22 years—up to which time she conversed like other people,—all at once ceased to speak, and for 42 years has not spoken a word, until Sunday, December 20th, when her speech returned, and she now converses moderately, but distinctly. No reason is given or known why this wonderful recovery of a woman's speech after so many years of pantomimic life.—Le Roy (N. Y.) Gazette.

LETTER FROM "NORTHWEST."

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

"LOANING" OTHER PEOPLE'S PROPERTY—MORE WAREHOUSES NEEDED TO PREVENT SHARP PRACTICE—PAY CASH AND YOU WILL PROSPER—THE MACKENZIE FORK CANAL.

TANGENT, Jan. 27, 1875.

The rain storm of last Thursday, and several showers since, have removed a large portion of the snow that fell during the previous ten days. A keen frost, however, has prevailed almost every night since the 8th of this month, the ground generally keeping as hard as iron until about noon, when the warm sun partially softens the surface for a few hours. The fall wheat will be more or less injured by the frost in the absence of snow. "He giveth snow like wool," is a benevolent provision of the Creator in a variety of ways. Stock of all kinds is suffering much. Farmers that allow their flocks to breed at pleasure are paying the penalty in the death of their lambs, and those that provide neither shelter nor feed for their cattle are suffering the same penalty. In many parts of the Wallamet and Umpqua valleys there is considerable progress made in both respects by the erection of large stock-barns, but there is occasion for the extension of the practice to a large extent. In the matter of shelter and food during the winter months farmers should take no chances.

AN ABUSE TO BE CORRECTED.

Prior to the organization of the Granges in this State, warehousemen had it so arranged as to get the "refusal" of the wheat from the farmers who stored with them, and quite a number of the warehousemen who acted as agents for the shippers in Portland, "loaned" the latter large quantities of wheat without the knowledge or consent of the farmers. The Grangers have almost effectually abolished the "refusal" system of storing, but the latter arbitrary and unjust practice of "loaning" is still continued to a greater or less extent by some of the warehousemen on the line of the Oregon and California Railroad. In a legal point of view such conduct should be made a penal offense on the part of both lenders and borrowers, as a breach of trust or fraud on the farmers, by disposing of his grain without his consent or knowledge, and preventing him from taking advantage of any advance in the market. But the farmers have the remedy in their own hands. First, by not storing a bushel of wheat in future in any warehouse where the proprietor has been known or reasonably suspected of "loaning" wheat during this shipping season. Second, the Grangers and farmers generally should more effectually organize to build a sufficient number of large or small warehouses of their own on the line of the railroads or rivers, ample to hold all their wheat, and thereby keep it entirely under their own control, so as to take advantage of any advance in the markets. The best plan in general would be for four, six or eight f[armers] to build their own warehouse, each to have their own bin in which their own wheat will be stored in bulk or sacks. By having such warehouses within reasonable distance of each other, and if possible where advantage can be taken of either railroad or river transportation, and the legitimate competition that naturally follows, such farmers can form large or small "pools" of wheat, when demand requires it, to great advantage to themselves and corresponding convenience to shippers. The "loaning" and "borrowing" system prevents the possibility of farmers taking advantage of competition among buyers and advance in prices. These remarks do not in any way apply to warehousemen who act honorably with farmers, and there are many such.

Oregon being essentially an agricultural State, whatever tends to promote their interests is essentially benefiting the whole community; and whoever enters into combinations to defeat or defraud them of getting the full value of their labor are the enemies of the whole industries of the community. Taking into consideration the manner in which the farmers have been tricked and imposed on, it is no wonder that they should make strenuous efforts to emancipate themselves; nor is it to be wondered at if they make mistakes in some of their plans. Time and united action will accomplish the former, and experience will correct the latter.

THE GRAND REMEDY FOR PROFITABLE TRADING

Is to adopt a cash basis in all business transactions. This is the radical cure for many abuses that now exist; the sooner it is adopted the speedier will the emancipation of the farming community be accomplished. It will save them 25 per cent. in the reduction of prices, and the same percentage in the diminution of unnecessary and extravagant purchases.

It will enable the merchant to conduct his business on the half of the capital required by the present credit system, to turn over his money four times for one that he can at present, and thereby make more money in the year than he does now. To the farmers of Oregon, we suggest to you, as a principle of vital importance to your independence, prosperity and the progress of the State, adopt the cash principle as the basis of your entire business transactions at once, if you can—gradually and as rapidly as possible.

THE GROWING [illegible] PRIDE OF THE [illegible] OF THE STATE

Is seen in the contemplated canal from the Mackenzie fork of the Wallamet river, eight or ten miles south of Harrisburg. From that point it will probably follow near the center of the prairie, between the [illegible] and the Wallamet river by way of Halsey and Shedd to Albany, a distance of 35 miles. The enterprise is most favorably received by the farmers and merchants of the entire district, and will be warmly and liberally supported by them. It will be built on the highest ground along the route so as to afford water power for mills at leading points. In the matter of freights, it will produce a great change in favor of the farmers and the whole community from the forks of the Wallamet to Albany. The extreme cost will not exceed $150,000. "There's a good time coming" for the farmers and all the industrious classes of the State. All who stand in the way of legitimate reforms, enterprises and removal of abuses that have existed and do still exist, will find it to be to their interest to fall into line and co-operate for whatever tends to develop the resources of the State and secure a fair and full remuneration to the sons of toil.

A LONG BUGGY RIDE.—A gentleman from our distant sister State of Kansas is visiting in this city for a few days, who drove all the way from Kansas to New Hampshire in a top buggy drawn by a single horse. This, is Thomas H. Kinney, of Wellsville, Kansas. Mr. Kinney left the fertile soil of the garden of the West on the 5th day of October. He carried only what baggage he could stow away in the buggy-box, traveling thus in light marching order. His horse was a native Kansas 4-year old colt, sired by the celebrated Gen. Mitchell, which followers of the turf have often heard of. They started out in the early morning, and [illegible] without [illegible] venience. Then, for the first time in his life, the horse was shod. Later on the shoes were taken off and reset, and afterward en route he was shod a second time. This was all the shoeing necessary. The roads were all sorts, of course, and once or twice, on account of rain and other causes, Mr. Kinney had to stop over for a day or so at a time. But he met with no accident, and accomplished the whole 1,520 miles in fifty-nine days, arriving at Charlestown, N. H., both horse and himself, in the very best condition.

Mr. Leland, the temperance lecturer, organized, on his trip to Bellingham Bay, three Good Templar Lodges: one at Utsalady, (re-organized) with Mrs. Craney, W. C.; one at LaConner, 10 charter members, with Mr. Canfield, W. C., and one at Skagit, 22 charter members, with Mr. Hartson, W. C.

WHAT CAN OREGON EXHIBIT?

No. 4.

Department 1, in the coming exhibition, consists of materials in their unwrought condition—mineral, vegetable and animal; and group 10 of this department will be devoted exclusively to minerals, ores, building-stone, metals and metallurgical productions, including miscellaneous and systematic collections of minerals, iron and steel, copper, tin, lead, &c., &c., viewed as materials.

It seems almost like a waste of time to call the attention of our people to the importance of improving so favorable an opportunity of advertising to the world in a tangible form the immense undeveloped wealth and mineral resources of our State. Doubtless many will say, "O, we can't make any show or expect to [compete with] California, and it's all foolishness to try." Grant that in the display of gold and silver we cannot compete with California, is this any good reason why we should neglect to make known to the rest of the world by exhibition that we have the precious metals in quartz, placer and sand-beach "diggings" in almost all parts of the State? The ignorance existing in the older States relative to the mineral resources of Oregon is well illustrated by an item we saw in an Eastern paper a year or two ago, giving the wonderful information that "lead had recently been discovered in Oregon, and as this State had no auriferous districts within its territory this discovery was one in which our people were greatly interested."

This is but a single instance in multitudes of cases that might be quoted that would go to show the want of some reliable plan by which to make our State known to older countries. While a single county in this State has produced its millions of gold, Oregon, for lack of making herself known, has, and will still continue to have, as a general rule, her gold and silver productions credited to California, unless our people take pains to make our resources known to the outside world.

In the display of precious metals, what would give a State more notoriety than a fine gold brick from our beach "diggings," with specimens of sand from which it was taken, and a statement (which can easily be authenticated) that gold existed in our beach sands, and in a number of places in paying quantities from our southern boundary to the mouth of the Columbia river. What could be more creditable or a better advertisement to our State than specimens of quartz and free gold from Jackson, Josephine and Douglas counties, with a statement of the extent of territory these mines cover; and also similar specimens and statements from our eastern counties, as well as specimens of the quartz, containing beautiful thread gold from the Santiam mines. An exhibition of this kind, although not expected to overshadow the display from California, would place our State in its true light and induce foreign capital to be invested in developing our mineral resources that now lay untouched and unproductive for want of means and skilled labor.

Add to our gold and silver exhibit specimens of native bronze and copper from Josephine; lead from S[illegible]; marble from Jackson; marble lime, and brown sandstone for building purposes, from Douglas; coal from Coos; iron from Oswego, and asphaltum from G[illegible] W[illegible], and we doubt much if California or any other State would make a better display or would [illegible] from their [illegible] than would be [illegible] the people of O[regon].

I might here add that the mineral and geological cabinet of Prof. Condon, which for wealth of scientific and geological history, and rare specimens, no other State has ever produced within its own bounds, would not only be a credit to our own State, but a grand acquisition to geological science and an honor to our whole nation.

The Centennial Exhibition is sure to transpire in 1876. Its importance is attracting the attention of the thinking part of community in other States, as well as the entire civilized world. Shall our State be represented there in its native material wealth?

STRAW BIDS.

AN INTERVIEW BETWEEN OUR SENATOR AND SECRETARY BRISTOW—SENATOR HIPPLE IS "NOT INTERESTED IN THESE MEN"—NOT HE!

[From the St. Louis Democrat.]

The Postmaster-General has taken hold of the straw bid question in connection with some of the principal routes in the Western States and Territories with great earnestness, and his action to-day in regard to routes in Oregon may be taken as indicating his course with all the rest. On investigation he found that Ben Holladay, Barlow, Sanderson & Co. have been able to control immense contracts at high rates, through a system of straw bids, and he has informed them that while their bids for the next year are the lowest responsible ones, he considers the price too high, and will not pay it; that he will not allow his department to be hampered by what he knows full well is a ring. Thinking they had the department at their mercy the contractors coolly informed him that if he did not accept their terms they would not continue the service. He replied that he should re-advertise the route and see that responsible bidders got an opportunity to make honorable competition.

To-day Senator Mitchell called upon Mr. Jewell to remonstrate with him regarding his proposed action to again advertise for the performance of service. The senator stated that such a course would consume valuable time, and in the mean time Holladay might refuse to carry mails at all and the people of Oregon, especially in the eastern part of that route now being served by Holladay, would suffer for want of mail facilities. Mr. Jewell replied that he thought $600 a day was too much to pay for seven hundred and fifty miles of stage-coach service, and that it could be done for less, and that he was determined to have it done at much less.

But, said the senator, how can it be done? These men have stock, coaches and other facilities to go ahead, and none else will.

I suppose I should send mail by another route, was the answer.

Well, then, said the senator, the people would not get their mail in seasonable time. Then, assuming an air non-patronizing, he said: Mr. Jewell, I am not interested in these men. I appeal for the people of Oregon, that you will not cause them trouble by readvertising the routes.

Mr. Jewell, in reply, stated that he knew the service was in the hands of a ring, and he would break it up if he had to let the mails of Oregon rot for months.

As a result, it is believed that Holladay & Barlow and Sanderson & Co. will carry the mails at a sum greatly reduced in figures represented in the bid. If they do not, some one else will have to do the work.

THE OREGON PIONEER ASSOCIATION.

BUTTEVILLE, Jan. 27, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

There are different modes of me[as]uring human power. The most common method is by the value of the works that it accomplishes; but the most just, I believe, is by the difficulties which an individual or a people encounter and successfully overcome, such as literally hewing their way step by step onward and upward, unaided, through obstacles which to the generality of mankind would seem to be insuperable. Yet it is no idle tale, but a true story of triumphant suc[cess] and grandeur, accomplished by the intrepid men and women who, toiling through months and years, amid perils and privations without [illegible], succeeded in subdu[ing] and [illegible] [illegible], with all the attendant [illegible] life in the [illegible] far-isolated valleys of Oregon, some of which lie within the sound of the surging billows of the mighty Pacific.

THURSDAY MORNING, JAN. 28, 1875.

A QUESTION OF STATE FINANCE.

The case of Simon vs The State Treasurer, recently decided by the Supreme Court, has given rise to considerable discussion as our readers have seen; but the discussion thus far has been confined mainly to points in which the public at large are not so deeply interested as the parties to the controversy appear to be. There is, however, a phase of the case, or rather a fact to which the case should attract particular attention, which concerns the whole State.

It appears the expenses of the State Government have for a long time exceeded the receipts, so that a floating debt amounting to nearly or quite three hundred thousand dollars has accrued. By the act of 1864, under which the tax for State purposes is now levied, it is provided that such tax shall be five mills on the dollar, and the object of it is clearly expressed in the statute: "To defray the current expenses of the State." The moneys raised by this tax could not lawfully be applied in payment of the pre-existing debts, even if the Legislature had declared them so applicable. The Constitution of the State, Art. IX., § 3 provides:

"No tax shall be levied except in pursuance of law, and every law imposing a tax shall state distinctly the object of the same, to which only it shall be applied."

Suppose the Legislature had attempted to appropriate any part of the moneys raised by taxation to the payment of these floating warrants, the act would have been clearly unconstitutional. The case of Simon vs. the Treasurer did not make it necessary for the court to pass upon this question, as the claim of the plaintiff was that there were moneys in the Treasury, derived from other so[urces th]an taxation, and the question was as to the applicability of these moneys to the payment of the warrant upon which the suit was based; but the amount of money in the Treasury derived from such other sources, as alleged in the complaint, being only about $7,000 in currency, the inquiry naturally arises, what is to be done with the remainder of the floating debt? If the court had held the appropriation act sufficient to justify the payment of this $7,000 on the floating debt how far would it go toward paying it off? It is a mere drop in the bucket—$7,000 out of $300,000.

Here then is the situation: the five mills tax has proved inadequate to "defray the current expenses of the State," and we have been drifting to leeward till there is an outstanding indebtedness of $300,000 for the people to pay interest on, when the day of reckoning comes, as come it must at last. And this debt has been allowed to accumulate in the very face of that clause of the Constitution which prohibits the State from contracting debts amounting in the aggregate to more than $50,000.

But how could it be helped? First of all by such an economical administration of the government as was contemplated by the framers of the Constitution and expected by the people when they voted to ratify that instrument. But in case there is an unavoidable deficiency, the Constitution points out the way to meet it. Section 6 of Art. IX. reads:

"Whenever the expenses of any fiscal year shall exceed the income, the legislative assembly shall provide for levying a tax for the ensuing fiscal year sufficient, with other sources of income, to pay the deficiency as well as the estimated expenses of the ensuing fiscal year."

Session after session of the Legislature has passed, and this provision of the Constitution has been overlooked or ignored, while an illegal debt has accumulated till it is now six times as large as the largest limit of the Constitution. We mean no impeachment of the motives or the patriotism of members of the Legislature, when we say there has been culpable neglect of the public interest in this matter, and the people are paying for it twice over, once in interest and once in the shaving of vouchers.

"WHO KILLED COCK ROBIN."

Our exposition of the tergiversations of the editor of the ring organ, and his con[nection with the] "appeal" [ser]t in this State last spring, has accomplished what we had about concluded it was impossible for any one to do—it has pierced his epidermis. There was some tall squirming done when he beheld his own face in the mirror we held up to his gaze. No sooner was the telegraph office opened than he began to communicate with our old friend General Coffin, of Mill Creek, who last spring carried the great "appeal" to the newspaper that published, and who at that time assumed the paternity of the document pro forma to screen the author. Click, click went the wires, but the General could not be induced to say he wrote the "appeal." Instead of that he sent us the following:

SALEM, Jan. 27, 1875.

To Editor Oregonian: I claim authorship of Mill Creek letter in Record of February 11, 1874, signed "Mill Creek," excepting alterations made by editor by my consent.

S. COFFIN.

We might object to the relevancy of the General's dispatch, as the publication he refers to is mentioned as a letter in the Record, whereas the famous call for an independent convention to which we have referred was published, not in the Record, but in the Wallamet Farmer and Statesman; but we do not care to be technical, and we presume the documents referred to are identical, and that the mistake is in the General's telegram. We, therefore, treat it in that light.

"I claim the authorship," says the General; not "I wrote the document." We knew at the time of the publication, that Gen. Coffin "claimed the authorship," and we knew why he claimed it instead of having the true author known; and we knew who the real author was,—and we knew these facts from such a source that we shall be greatly surprised if the editor of the Bulletin deny that he himself was the real author. We should never have referred to the fact of the authorship, however, had not the matter been made public through the newspaper at Salem. We have also on our desk the written statement of the gentleman who was editor of the Farmer and Statesman at the time of the publication of the "appeal," that the present editor of the Bulletin is the author of it. Is not that getting pretty close down to the point?

Yes, that is getting pretty near the bottom of it; but we venture to probe it a little deeper. Gen. Coffin, since you have been called on the stand, will you state directly whether Joseph Gaston, Esq., did not write the letter referred to in your telegram of the 27th instant, and whether you did not have it published with such trifling modifications as you have mentioned? Please give all the facts, as the confidence existing then between the parties who knew the facts, has been opened.

Friend Gaston, we feel compelled, howsoever reluctant, to call you to the witness stand. Did not you write that appeal or call, and hand it to General Coffin substantially as it was published? and did not tell anybody, at or about the time of the transaction, about your authorship of it? Please tell all the facts in the premises; and, our word for it, you will feel better. We have no desire to misrepresent you, and should feel almost like going through the form of taking it all back, notwithstanding what we know of the matter, if you should state pointedly that you had nothing to do with writing that letter or appeal—though we know you well enough to know you will not say so for howsoever you may quibble and prevaricate, we do not believe you will tell an unqualified one in answer to a direct and pertinent question.

We await your pleasure, gentlemen.

THE COLOR LINE.

An eighty page pamphlet has just been issued at Memphis, Tennessee, urging the white people of the South to "come out and form on the color line." How extensively this statement is accepted in the North it is impossible to tell. It is to be hoped, however, that it is confined to the comparatively few addle-pated creatures who still cling to the idea of reducing the colored people again to slavery. Whenever the people of the unhappy South make up their minds to form once more on the color line, they may as well give up all hope of peaceably governing themselves during this generation. The color line is not the line the American people are going to form on. They have written it in blood that so far as legal and political rights are concerned the color line must be obliterated. There is to be no receding from that position. It is too late to sneer at color or to make that a test of civil rights: too late in the progress of civil liberty: too late in the development of Christian civilization: too late in the growth of American republicanism. No, we shall hardly form on the color line in the afternoon of the nineteenth century.

THE MACKENZIE AND ALBANY CANAL.

It will be seen by the letter of our traveling correspondent, "Northwest," that the project of constructing a canal from the Mackenzie Fork of the Wallamet across the great Linn county prairie to Albany, is receiving earnest consideration. It is perfectly feasible, and will, if carried out, be of incalculable advantage to the farmers of the prairie, and to the towns through which it passes. Two years ago this same project was discussed in the OREGONIAN, and was pronounced feasible and every way desirable. We had taken pains to ascertain the altitudes and other data in the premises with sufficient accuracy to warrant us in saying the work could be done at comparatively small cost. The great benefits of the Lebanon and Albany canal, completed last year, have stimulated the energies of the enterprising people of Linn county, and they will not stop till they have secured the Mackenzie canal also, by which transportation will be cheapened and milling conveniences furnished for a large district of the very choicest part of the great Wallamet Valley.

REGULATION OF RAILWAYS.

In his message to the Minnesota Legislature, Governor Davis shows that the exercise by the State Legislature of the power to regulate freight on railways, works well. He says, speaking of the Minnesota law:

Statutes are generally vindicated or condemned by their results. This statute has resulted in the substantial abolition of local discriminations. The tables which accompany this report demonstrate that upon passenger fares, if the average earnings estimated by the commissioners are correct, reductions will in one year amount to $69,345. By the same process of approximation they estimate that the saving in one year from August 1, 1874, upon the two articles of grain and lumber will be $230,000.

Upon the general question of the right of the State to prevent abuses, and to give a remedy for their commission, my own views are so well known through frequent expression, that it is not necessary for me to reiterate them. I regard it as practically settled that this right exists. This view is warranted by the decision of nearly all the courts which have passed upon the question, and now awaits final confirmation by the Supreme Court of the United States, whose decisions upon principles which underlie this subject have placed that court upon a line of logical consequences, which, it would seem, must lead it to affirm the views of the subordinate tribunals.

BEECHER ON SHAKESPEARE.

At Plymouth Church on Sunday, Jan. 3, says the New York Herald, in addition to the announcement of the renting of the pews on the next Tuesday evening, Mr. Beecher took occasion to say a word for Shakespeare, in announcing the delivery, in Brooklyn, of Mr. Weiss' lectures on the women of Shakspeare. He said: Next to the Bible Shakespeare has given rise to more mental activity than any man, probably, that ever lived—certainly of the Anglo-Saxon race. It may be that Plato and Aristotle, in there sphere of scholarship, may have originated as much mental activity in their time as Shakespeare in our own: but they have not exceeded it on universal thought. Still the mine is not yet worked out, and it never will be until man's nature and observation have ceased to exist. It is good not simply to read Shakspeare, but to critically investigate his writings. To young man who are beginning their literary studies these lectures will afford an opportunity of hearing a man of genius, and also afford an approving opportunity of gaining a knowledge not only of the great author, but also of the nature of mind.

We call especial attention to the communication of Hon. A. J. Dufur, Centennial Commissioner, which appears this morning. Oregon is rich in all the natural resources of a great country, and is by no means without products of industry. Our State should make a good showing at the great exposition.

A NEW PUBLICATION.

It is not generally known that there is a monthly magazine published at Salem. Such is the fact nevertheless. This brilliant periodical is called the Star of Freedom, and is edited by a zealous brother by the name of F. M. Salisbury. It is a four page periodical, the pages being of about the same size of those of a child's primer. The third number has reached our desk, and we pronounce it quite equal to its predecessor. Here is a specimen chapter, neither better nor worse than the average, which we present verbatim, et literatim, et punctuatim:

RITUALISM

Jesus Christ gave the living water to those who believed, saying that those drinking thereof should never thirst again. Now if a man drinks wine, and thirsts again, it is evident that he has not drank of the fount of life, and if he drinks human blood, it onley intoxicates never slacking thirst. From this it appears that men can not go into the penitentiary and take out a man cut his throat and drink up his blood, calling him the bleeing lamb, while driking his blood, and rejoice as a good Christian. Nor take the knee pan from a man, and break it. Or boast in the Legislature of going into the insane asylum takeing out a grand son of bunker hill cutting his throat and drinking up his blood and be a Christian. When Christianity is practiced by all mankind as much as witchcraft is in the lodge, then will sorrows cease.

The commutation of the sentence of Thos. Gerrand from death to imprisonment for life, will, we feel assured, meet the approval of all who are acquainted with the facts in the case. The fact that the Judges of the Supreme Court who have had the case before them twice asked for Executive clemency for the unfortunate young man, is sufficient evidence that the case was not an ordinary one. Our judges have never been hasty to throw their influence into the scale against the punishment of malefactors. And to the credit of Gov. Grover it must be said he has not abused the pardoning power heretofore; and we are sure this exercise of the power to commute a judgment will be regarded as not abuse.

In the marine court of New York, Judge Joachimson has decided that the proprietors of sleeping cars are liable the same as Inn keepers for property stolen from the pockets of the clothing of passengers who are sleeping in the cars.

Mr. Parrot, with his family, emigrated from Missouri to Oregon in the year 1844, and took up the claim where he has since lived for several years, to 1845. He leaves a wife and one son.

RIVER AND COAST IMPROVEMENTS

Orders have been issued from the office in this city to have some repairs made at Iidw's Hook One of the principal features of the improvements will be a fence to be built enclosing all the buildings and lighthouse grounds

Work being completed at Squally Hook Capt Smith who had charge of the scows tackling etc made preparations at once to move up to the rapids at Umatilla and commence operations at that point With all the scows and men he started to ascend the river on the 5th instant The distance to be navigated is something over 70 miles Extreme cold weather came on soon after Capt Smith started and as neither men nor boats had put in an appearance at Umatilla at the latest accounts there can be no doubt but what the ice has closed up the river and prevented the party from proceeding further Present appearances indicate that it will be several weeks before work on the Upper Columbia can be resumed

Reports were received a few days since by General N Michler from the person superintending the work which has been done the past few months at Admiralty Head and Smith's Island From the report we learn that the repairs and improvements at these points are completed At Admiralty Head the work done consists of a new wood house, storeroom repairs made to the keeper's house new shutters made and hung to all the windows, an additional [illegible] around the parapet of the lantern, and numerous other alterations repairs and improvements of minor importance The work done at Smith's Island was the construction of a wood house and storeroom the putting up of a picket fence around the keeper's house and other buildings, and the clearing out and repairing of a cistern

Capt R B Randall who is superintending the work of improving the channel of the Upper Columbia, is now snowed in at Umatilla Under date of the 14th inst., he writes a letter to Gen Michler enclosing a lengthy report of the character and extent of the work done at "Squally Hook" Just before the late cold weather came on Captain Randall left "Squally Hook" with the intention of examining the channel of the river at the point where the steamer Tenino struck a rock and sunk last fall His object was to determine the precise location of the rock so that it could be removed Capt Randall started overland and by the time he reached U[illegible] being delayed on the way at the John Day river the extreme cold weather came which rendered it almost impossible for him to proceed further The position of the rock mentioned was ind[illegible] by a buoy but Capt Randall found it had been carried away by the quantities of floating ice. Until the weather moderates and the river is comparatively free from its icy fetters, further examinations will be suspended

[illegible] SHE THROWS HERSELF INTO THE GENESEE RIVER, AND PASSES OVER THE FALLS.

[From the Rochester (N Y) Democrat Jan 8]

Shortly after 8 o clock last night a wild cry came from the lips of a woman standing on the east end of the Central Railroad bridge which crosses the Genesee river but a few yards above the falls There was no one there but herself for the night was cold the wind blew strongly from the gulf below and the sleet and snow fell in a very uncomfortable way The bridge is a very cold and desolate place during a winter's storm Hearing the cry, Thomas Ryan a flagman hurried from his shanty at the foot of Water street and a brakeman rushed out from Fell's saloon near by The girl was wringing her hands and crying piteously as she gazed at a dark figure moving downward in the water When the men came up to her and spoke she turned and fled screaming down the railroad track There was no necessity of asking any questions, however two plainly visible facts told that a terrible tragedy was being enacted that a human being was standing at the door of eternity Fully outlined against the sky, and only a few feet from the edge of the falls stood a female form No word was uttered by her as she steadily approached the brink and no word was spoken save a stifled cry of horror from the two witnesses as she threw out her arms and went down with the whirling waters to her death below Upon the ice just below the bridge were the marks the suicide had made when she took her mad leap She had jumped over the railing, falling upon her hands and knees got up, and walked deliberately over the ice to where the current swept by As the water is not very deep now she must have passed slowly toward the falls

The girl who had run from the scene hurried to the house of her father John Widmer No 30 Herman street and gave the sad tidings in an excited manner A crowd was soon on the spot The father brother and husband of the suicide went down the icy dangerous path which leads to below the falls but were however compelled to postpone their search until this morning

The facts of this melancholy case prior to the leap from the bridge, are as follows Julia Theuer the wife of Christian Theuer a cabinet maker and the daughter of John Widmer of No 30 Herman street gave birth to a child about a year ago The child died. Grief unseated reason, and Mrs Theuer became a maniac She wanted to follow her child was tired of life and often expressed a desire to die About eight months since she was removed to the insane asylum at Utica from which she returned about two months ago much better but still suffering from her malady One peculiar phase of her insanity was that she shunned and disliked her husband though without cause Since her return she acted in a rational way and was allowed to walk out, though always in company with some one Last evening she left her home in company with her sister Barbara Widmer After walking about they reached the corner of Atwater and Clinton streets where Julia said she wanted to go down and see the falls Her sister accompanied her to the railroad bridge They walked up the south side and as the peculiar manner in which Julia acted rendered her sister suspicious that she contemplated suicide she tried to persuade her to leave the bridge They passed to the north side of it and had reached the east end again when Julia turned suddenly placed her hands upon the railing and tried to jump over Barbara tried to hold her back, and implored her to desist from her attempt but with one wild exertion of her frenzied power, she broke loose and jumped to the ice below Julia screamed and the men appeared The rest has been narrated above Deceased was 25 years of age, respectable, and beloved by a large circle of friends who will mourn her tragic death

A letter from Buena Vista to the Record says The most of the grain stored at this place has been sold The last sale that was made was a lot in the Farmers warehouse of 13 586 bushels at 66 cents per bushel, the Oregon City Mills purchasers There are several thousand bushels yet in the same house hold ing for higher figures "

A LONG SEARCH

THE HUNT FOR CHARLIE ROSS

Many interesting incidents connected with the search for Charlie Ross have been obtained from the detectives employed in the case by the citizens of Philadelphia. The detectives began the search in July and since then they have scoured the United States and Canada and even crossed the Atlantic in hope of finding the kidnapped boy. The work has cost over $40,000. One of the largest items has been the expense of circulars, cards, and posters. Seven hundred thousand circulars have been issued containing the portraits of the abduction description of the boy and his kidnappers and photographs of Charlie. These have been sent to every police officer sheriff and constable, and posted in every railroad station police office and postoffice in the country. Two men were specially detailed to attend to their distribution in Canada. The circulars were also posted in the vessels in most of our seaports. The printing, mailing and the photographing has cost $8,000. Several thousand letters ... have been sent to the detectives in answer to the circular. Every communication has been answered, and all trails followed. The correspondence has been so extensive as to require a ... corps of clerks.

Between 500 and 600 children have been reported as Charlie Ross. In numerous instances where good clews were thought to have been obtained officers have been sent on investigations to distant places only to find that the children had been trained to answer the questions intended for the identification of the missing boy and that their keepers had been moved to the deception in the hope of having them ransomed. Twenty-five detectives were engaged at one time in making as many investigations.

The gipsies led the detectives on many long and fruitless chases. Over 200 bands were heard from as having children that were thought to be Charlie Ross. Most of these ... sought in the gypsy camps turned out to be stolen, and in several instances their parents were found. One little boy whom the officers came across in the tents of the gypsies was restored to his father and mother in Rock Island county after two separations. They never expected to see him [illegible]

The detectives ... and ... have been engaged ... hunt. They can only explain the failure to find him on the ... that he is either dead or that the ... in an obscure place with some recluse who has never heard anything of the case —N Y ...

UNCOMMONLY PARTICULAR

THE DUCHESS OF EDINBURG NEVER OPENED A DOOR

A London letter says "The Duchess of Edinburg does not grow in favor with the public. They never quite forgave her for asserting her precedence over the Princess Beatrice, and she has certainly given proofs of a haughty disposition. As a general rule, her own royal family do not give themselves airs and this sort of personal pride is especially resented in a foreigner. A curious instance of it took place the other day at Chiswick when the Duke and Duchess went to visit a certain famous collection of hot-house flowers. The proprietor of the place wished to explain the merits of his plants, but the path was ... and to ... have been indecorous as well as dangerous to his pots, and to precede her, he was given to ... would have been (in Russia) to commit high treason. At last they came to a swing-door, which only, ... that which, to the ... Duchess, was an immense barrier. She had never opened a door for herself in her life, and was not going to begin in a nursery garden at Chiswick. Her splendid attire blocked up the path, so that to pass by her was impossible, and the whole party consequently came to a dead lock. The unhappy proprietor was in despair. Then the Duke came to his assistance. 'She won't open the door' said he, that is quite out of the question. Do you run round, open it for her, and keep in front of her. Walk backward and never mind your flower pots. Whether any flower pots were broken, I don't know but I will stake my existence that if they were the Duke did not pay for them.

Russian Beauty.—The characteristics of the Russian type of feminine beauty are an extreme fairness of the complexion grayish-blue eyes, blonde or chestnut hair and a certain embonpoint, arising from the lack of exercise, and the life indoors which is compelled by a winter lasting seven or eight months. They suggest the idea of odalisques, whom the genius of the North keeps confined in the tropical atmosphere of a hot house. They have complexions of cold cream and snow, with tints of the heart of a camelia—like those over-veiled women of the seraglio, whose skin the sunlight has not touched. By this exile ... fairness their delicate features are rendered even more delicate and the softened outlines form faces of hyperborean sweetness and polar grace. The Russian women, in society seem to make less display than the ..., as the uniforms and court dress of the latter glitter with gold lace embroidery and jeweled decorations. Yet the ... robes of the ladies are composed of the costliest fabrics, fastened with the rarest gems, and their dazzling skins, ... and glimmering pearls and flowing draperies match in effect the heavy splendor of the masculine attire.

Got Even with Him.—An Irish citizen called at the Postoffice. "Oany letter for O Hool...?" "Which of them?" "Oany of thim." "We can't give out letters that way—what's your first name?" "None of your business fwhat my name is—I want a letther." "We can't tell whether there is any letter for you without knowing what your name is." "I'm a naturalized citizen and ain't I as much right to a letther as anybody?" "Why, yes, of course if there is one for you, I can't tell whether ... is any unless you tell me your name." "Gimme a letter I tell you." "Give me your name, I tell you!" "Me name is—me name is—Pathrick Mahoney." (Clerk looks.) "There is no letter for Patrick Mahoney." After a little more stubborn insisting the man started away. A gentleman, who had been looking on with much enjoyment inquired "So you didn't get any letter after all Pat?" "No" said Pat with a wink "but I got even with him. It wasn't me own name I gave him! Is there onny other Postoffice in this town where I could get a letther, sur?"

Parisian Robbers.—A band of robbers has just been broken up in Paris. They called themselves Chevaliers des Cravates Vertes, and were known to each other by a peculiar green neck tie which each wore. The band contains 143 members, all young men of good family connections, and were commanded by a former Captain of the Commune, named Godard. Early in December one of the band, Gissner, was arrested in the act of committing a robbery. He showed the white feather and told the agent of the police where to find some of his comrades. Godard, the leader, and fifteen of his associates in crime were arrested, and the detectives were put on the trail of forty nine others. In the pocket of each of the robbers was found the green neck tie the badge of the order.

After the disbursement of the January dividends when a large amount of surplus capital will be thrown on the market it is believed that investors will more largely seek this class of securities.

Evidences of the prosperity of the West continue to accumulate. Money is active at low rates in Chicago, Cincinnati and St Louis, trade collections are easy and loans are paid promptly. Loan agents report that there has rarely been greater alacrity to meet interest, while the payments of principal are large and scarcely any extensions of time are being asked for. All branches of trade except iron and a few specially depressed industries are active.

The advance synopsis of the Monthly Report of the Bureau of Statistics, which gives the returns of our foreign trade for the month ending Sept 30th and for the nine months ended the same shows that allowing for the difference in the warehouse account the total imports for the nine months closing as above stated exceeded the total domestic and foreign exports combined ... $151 ... while for the corresponding period of 18... the excess of imports was ... Miscellaneous

The Oregon grain fleet ready to load as soon as the river clears, consists of the barks Windward, Wetherhorn, and Corsica and the ship Lizzie C Troop. The ship Parsee Euterpe and Conflict, and the bark Willie Rickmers are also about due. Of these eight vessels four only are reported chartered. There are also now reported due here to load wheat ten vessels from foreign ports six of which were due in December and four due the present month.

Commissioner Douglass estimates that the amount of tax paid into the treasury by the national banks for the year now closing, will aggregate $9,000,000 which is $4,000,000 more than ... year.

We note in one of the Southern papers an admission that the cotton crop has been gathered at a cost of fifteen millions of dollars less than the same kind of crop was gathered in the times of slavery. The South therefore is producing as much as she did before the war and at less cost.

The total shipments of flour and wheat from Oregon to all ports since the beginning of the current harvest year not including the cargoes of the Hera and Middlesex not yet sailed are ... tons of 2000 lbs each.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind and become household words among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured so wide a reputation or maintained it so long as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has been known to the public about forty years by a long continued series of marvellous cures that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of Coughs Colds Consumption that can be made by medical skill. Indeed the Cherry Pectoral has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects that is well founded if the remedy be taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.
